Introduction

Trending Topics in GU Oncology was launched in 2021 with the aim of creating a dynamic, debate-driven forum for scientific exchange in genitourinary oncology. From the first edition, the meeting adopted a distinctive discussion-oriented format, prioritizing clinical reasoning and expert dialogue rather than long didactic lectures, and encouraging active participation among attendees.

The meeting is supported by the Canary Islands Cancer Research Foundation (FICIC) and carries the scientific endorsement of the Spanish Society of Medical Oncology (SEOM) and the ECO Foundation, ensuring academic rigor and commitment to high-quality medical education.

Consolidation and Success of the 4th Edition (2025)

The 4th edition, held in March 2025 in Gran Canaria, represented an important milestone in the consolidation of the meeting. Nearly one hundred national and international specialists attended, confirming the position of Trending Topics in GU Oncology as a well-established reference forum in the field.

The meeting also received institutional support from the Health Ministry of the Government of the Canary Islands, reinforcing its recognition as a scientific and educational initiative aligned with regional healthcare excellence strategies.

A key factor in expanding the visibility of the meeting was the collaboration with Uromigos®, its Spanish-language platform TresUromigas, and OncoAlert, through the development and dissemination of educational materials including videos, interactive surveys, slide summaries, and podcasts. These resources allowed the discussions to extend beyond the physical venue and reach a broader audience.

During this edition, the Uromigoscore was presented as a clinical decision-support tool designed to complement existing clinical guidelines, particularly when several therapeutic options share comparable levels of evidence. Its presentation generated notable engagement on social media: several posts tagged #GUtrends25 exceeded 14,000 views, underscoring both the community's interest and the consolidation of the meeting as a reference event.
